In New Orleans from 1850 to 1850 average hands in manufacturing rose from $391 to $437 per annum, while the number of hands employed rose from 9,004 to 21,804 during the same time. —New York Press.

An extensive strike of brewery employees is imminent in Milwaukee. Both trouble and beer are brewing in that town.

It is reported that "women are knocking at the door of the Harvard Divinity School." Perhaps they want to see the fellows.

The rising tide of Protectionist sentiment among the farmers of England is the impressive testimony of a Nation which has tried Free-trade and found it wanting.

The Illinois Steel Company will soon close their steel rail mills at South Chicago for two or three months; 3,500 men will be out of employ, a hundred or more of whom have been earning $100 to $125 a month.

Nobdy denies that Mr. Cleveland is President-elect of the United States, but there is some disposition to dispute his ownership of the Legislature of the state of New York. One David B. Hill claims to hold a mechanic's lien on this last named property.

A recent in one county in the Fifth Congressional District of Michigan, claimed by the Republicans, shows the election of George F. Richardson, Democrat, by twelve votes over Charles E. Belknap, Republican, the present Representative in Congress.

The public debt at its highest figure in 1866 was $2,773,236,173.60. It is now $1,358,298,219.53. Since the civil war about $1,414,938,954 16 in debts have been paid. The annual saving in interest alone now pays all penalties, enormous as they are.

The Hon. Tom Johnson, who succeeded in unloading his Free-trade speech at the Reform Club dinner, thinks that "Mr. Crisp is entirely to sensitive." We infer from this that Johnson would have submitted weekly to insult if he had been in Crisp's place.

The South calls loudly for the refunding of the cotton tax. As the tax in question amounted to a mere trifle of some $70,000,000 a Democratic Congress would hardly quibble with the Sunny South over a little matter like that. The money would enable the Southern boomers to put a nice new set of rockers on the celebrated cradle of civil liberty.

Perhaps a taste of Free-trade would be a real healthful thing for those who have thoughtlessly voted for Cleveland. With our markets deluged with goods made in Europe, and wages of our workmen tumbling to a competitive basis, it is probable that wage-earners and all who are patronized by them would comprehend that Free-trade does not take the welfare of the masses into consideration.

A good idea of the deplorable condition of labor in Free-trade England is furnished in a recent report of the labor correspondent of the British Board of Trade. Reports for October from twenty-two labor Unions, with a membership of 269,653 show that 7.3 per cent. of the men are unemployed. On the same date in 1889 only 1.6 per cent. were idle; in 1890, 2.6, and in 1891, 4.45 per cent. Thus it is seen that the great army of the unemployed in Free-trade England constantly and rapidly increases.

M. C. RUSSELL & SON.
SOMETHING ABOUT M. C. R. AND THE BIG BUSINESS HE DOES.

FAIRLY INSTALLED in a Handsome New Home—A Worthy and Successful Career Marked by Good and Generous Deeds.

The well-known features of the senior member of the firm, Milton C. Russell, are well portrayed in the above likeness. That he is no more widely known or popular citizen of Maysville. He is strictly a Mayvillian in every sense of the word. He was born here, reared here and every important event connected with his career has been identified more or less closely with this city and the people thereof.

Milton Culbertson Russell was born in this section on April 6th, 1844.

His parents were Christopher and Mary Ann Russell, the former of whom is still living, an object of respect and esteem of the entire community.

His education was received in the common schools and in the famous Academy of Rand & Richeson. At the age of 15 he entered the employ of John H. Richardson, dealer in groceries. He at once displayed a remarkable aptitude for business and gained the confidence of the business community in general. In January, 1864, he transferred his energies to the Union Coal and Oil Company, for which concern he was a salesman during that year.

In October, 1864, he returned to the wholesale grocery business, entering the employ of W. H. Richardson, and has never since left this line of mercantile pursuits. That he has been eminently successful every citizen of Mason county knows.

Mr. Russell was married on April 2d, 1865, to Miss Elexene P. Johnson, step-daughter of Judge Kackley of German-town. To this union has been born three as extensive throughout all the surrounding country as the quality of his merchandise is excellent.

Besides the immense business of stock, which is under his immediate direction, there are other enterprises with which he has been and is connected, predominantly among which is the Mason County Building and Saving Association of which he is one of the founders and most earnest promoters. He was chosen the first Secretary of the Association and his term of office has been continuous. It is a fact worthy of note that in eighteen years he was missed from his post of duty as Secretary but one Saturday night, when the payment of weekly dues is received.

His close attention to all matters of business under his care and control is one of his most pronounced characteristics. He can always be found at his place of business, early and late. He is a generous, whole-souled gentleman, always ready to aid from his ample means any worthy object.

He is in full possession of an abundance of public spirit, which many names has been exerted in behalf of the prosperity of the city and its institutions.

He is large and handsome in appearance, an exceedingly pleasant gentleman socially, and has all the qualifications of an ideal citizen and gentleman.

The most imposing mercantile structure in Northeastern Kentucky stands on the Northeast corner of Market and Third streets in this city. Within its walls the enterprising and thriving wholesale grocery firm of M. C. Russell & Son conducts its business. The edifice was erected by the senior member of the firm, M. C. Russell, expressly for its own use.

For more than twenty years this corner has been the home of M. C. Russell & Son and their immediate predecessors, M. C. Russell, Richardson & Russell and D. A. Richardson.

The now famous and popular firm really has had its inception in the wholesale grocery house of W. H. Richardson, whose place of business was the house on Market street now occupied by W. W. Watkins as a sample-room. This was in October, 1864, and Mr. Russell, the elder, was connected with the concern in the capacity of bookkeeper. In May, 1866, W. H. Richardson was succeeded in business by his father, D. A. Richardson, whose death occurred recently and who had been one of Maysville's most successful business men.

In October, 1864, he returned to the wholesale grocery business, entering the employ of W. H. Richardson, and has never since left this line of mercantile pursuits. That he has been eminently successful every citizen of Mason county knows.

Mr. Russell was married on April 2d, 1865, to Miss Elexene P. Johnson, step-daughter of Judge Kackley of German-town. To this union has been born three tinued to increase and its influence and patronage widened. In July, 1896, Mr. Richardson retired from business on account of advanced age and was succeeded by M. C. Russell. In July, 1890, Mr. Russell took into the business with his eldest son, J. Barbour Russell, to tear away the old structure and replace it with one more in conformity with modern ideas and especially adapted to the use to which it was to be put.

Craspey & Brown, the well known architects of Cincinnati, were engaged to draw the plans for the new building, contractors were invited to bid. Most if not all the contractors in the city made their estimates and out of the lot that of Samuel B. Chunn was selected as being the lowest and best bid and to him was awarded the contract.

By terms of the contract the work of tearing down and rebuilding was to occupy one hundred and twenty days, beginning on June 1st.

By courtesy of the City Council, Mr.

Russell was permitted to use the old Market-house space, known to the average Mayvillian as the Esplanade, as a place of temporary abode for his stock of goods. Here he built a mammoth frame shed in which he bought, sold and delivered during the months of reconstruction.

This young gentleman has entered into the business with a zeal and earnestness that can be but fruitful in their results.

He is well educated, industrious and of extraordinary energy. He is the traveling salesman for the house and the outside patronage enjoyed is largely due to his labor. His territory consists of Central and Eastern Kentucky and Southern Ohio, and through this section no commercial traveler is more widely and favorably known.

James Barbour Russell was born in this city on December 29th, 1863. He was educated in the schools of this city, and like his father, began his business career at an early age. He was but 15 years of age when he entered the employ of Richardson & Russell ten years ago.

He was married on June 2d, 1891, to Miss Patti Calvert, a most estimable young lady of this city.

As a member of the firm of M. C. Russell & Son in July, 1890. He has by inheritance many of his ancestor's superior qualifications and bids fair in time to rank among Maysville's foremost business men.

Mr. Russell is also Secretary of Maysville Council No. 38, United Commercial Travelers.

THE OLD BUILDING.

The old building which stood on this corner for more than forty years was a familiar landmark to most of the present generation. It was an ordinary three-story brick with ornamental or distinguishing features. It became evident to the Messrs. Russell that more room was needed to meet the rapid and substantial growth of their business. The property was owned by Mr. Russell, Sr., and last spring he determined to at once dispose of the old building and erect a larger and more commodious structure.

Upon entering the house you are at once impressed with the idea that there are in a place where there is no business as much business to do as there is.

All five of the spacious floors are in active use and filled with merchandise.

The office is on the first floor at the East and is a pretty and cosy apartment. It is unnecessary to go into a detailed description of this attractive and well appointed establishment. It is as complete as capable judgment and genius could make it.

It is said there will be fourteen weddings in Manchester during the holidays.

Horses for cavalry service are purchased mostly in St. Louis, and occasion-

AMONG the most sacred reliques of Hinduism is the veritable eyeball of Buddha. It looks like nothing else but the tiny, black, well boiled pearl that one often finds in an oyster stew. This "Eye of Buddha" is shown every day at high noon, special mass being chanted by the Priests while the relic is being brought out and displayed.

Mr. Moody's expressed fear that prayer would save the Spree from destruction when its shaft broke the other day is puzzling those who remember that his old friend and coworker, Mr. Bliss, was killed in the terrible Ashtabula disaster a few years ago, although presumably he prayed as fervently as those who were on the Spree. Every man gifted in prayer, D. L. Moody says, "has the power to give the world a good deal more like the simple faith enjoined upon the children of the King."

One of the blacksmith shops in Wilmot, Pa., has just celebrated its centennial. It is estimated that eight shoes, on an average, have been nailed upon horses' feet every work day during the century, masking a total of about 250,000 shoes.

A Bonx will not be open Christmas Day. Those desiring a nice basket of Fruit, Box of Fine Candy or anything in his line will please call before Sunday. Extra nice Malaga and Catawba Grapes, Florida Oranges, 25¢ per dozen.

CONSUMERS of whisky need not fear that old favorite rate of fifteen cents a swig will be raised because of the sordid machinations of a heartless trust. Retail prices will remain unchanged as long as alcohol, burn sugar, fuel oil, water and the like adulterants remain uncornered.

WILL ZINGERLE, the C. and O. Collector who put the train robbers to flight near Huntington last week after they had killed one passenger and injured others, was treated to another surprise when he reached home the next evening. His wife presented him with a fine little daughter.

A Cure for Croup.

If your child suffers from croup, always keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at hand. It is a prompt and certain cure. If given as soon as the croupy cough appears it will prevent the attack. For sale by Power & Reynolds, Druggists.

THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT has rendered a decision against the Trustees of E. L. Harper, the Cincinnati grain broker. The court held that the President of the Fidelity National Bank, as a trustee brought against him by Preston & McFarland, grain brokers of Chicago, to compel Harper and his associates to pay their unpaid subscriptions to the capital stock of the Cincinnati, Columbus and Hocking Valley Railroad Company.

A FRENCH expert who recently went to Panama says there is $90,000,000 worth of canal equipment lying on the isthmus. By worth he probably meant cost, for the Americans and others declare that as an available asset the machinery cannot be worth anything. It will never be moved. A large portion is already irretrievably damaged. It has suffered severely from exposure that much of it could not be used, even if work were resumed on the Panama canal, which is no longer clasped among the possibilities.

Not From a Financial Standpoint.

"I do not recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy from a financial standpoint, for we have others in stock on which we make a larger profit," says Al Maggini, a prominent druggist of Bradenton, Fla., "but because many of our customers have spoken of it in the highest praise. We sell more of it than any similar preparation we have in the store." For sale by Power & Reynolds, Druggists.

HANS CARL CHRISTIAN EMILE LAURITZ RASMUSSEN was the name of a resident of New York. He applied to Judge Bookstaven in the Court of Common Pleas for relief, and he is to be known hereafter as Christ Emilie Rasmussen. His burden is yet greater than most people would like to bear.

A CURIOUS clock has been made by a clockmaker at Warsaw, who has worked at it six years. The clock represents a railway station, with waiting rooms for the traveler, telegraph and ticket offices, a very pretty, well-lighted platform and a flower garden, in the center of which is a sparkling fountain of clear water.

An Invaluable Remedy for Colds.

Sheriff Hardman of Tyler county, W. Va., was almost prostrated with a cold when he began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. In speaking of it he says: "It gave me almost instant relief. I find it to be an invaluable remedy for colds." For sale by Power & Reynolds, Druggists.

THE GREAT CALIFORNIA TROTTER STAMBOL, who, by a quarter of a second holds the record over Kremlin, the Tennessee stallion, was sold in New York for $41,000. Nancy Lee, the dam of the famous Nancy Hanks the queen of the trotting turf and holder of the world's record, was sold for $7,100.

THE UNITED STATES BLUE BOOK contains information about 180,000 Government and other publications amounting to $90,000,000 a year. It is a very large and a very expensive book, consisting of two ponderous volumes. So far as known, there is only one copy in Maysville, this being the property of Postmaster Davis, and his Democratic friends have almost worn out the carpet in his private office in their pilgrimages to get a look at it.

From Newberg.

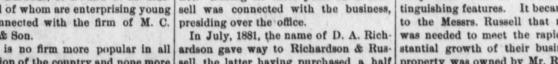

C. F. Moore & Co., prominent druggists of Newberg, Ore., say: "Since our customers have become acquainted with the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, we sell as much of any other kind. Chamberlain's medicines all give good satisfaction." For sale by Power & Reynolds, Druggists.

The campaign is finished and the result of the election is the National success of the Democratic party, with its Free-trade platform.

Does that result show the Protection cause lost, or the efforts in its behalf futile? Not at all, and this result need not be held surprising.

In 1890 came the great landslide toward Democracy and Tariff for revenue only—Free-trade thinnly veiled. The election this year shows a gain in the popular vote for Protection, a gain in Republican members of Congress, but not gain enough to overturn the canvas of two years ago. We are going up, not down.

The country vote is for Republican Protection, but the city vote for Democratic Free-trade overcomes it. In New York and Chicago this is especially manifest. The vote of the country is more thoughtful and intelligent than that of the city. In New York City for instance, while we have able and thoughtful men, the crowd that shouts for Protection is far less thoughtful than the farmers and mechanics and others in town and country. As for Protection being a "lost cause," that is impossible. If a home market for home industry, if the upbuilding in our midst of varied occupations—farm and mill, forest and mine near each other, exchanging easily, and all developing home resources and internal wealth—the wise and true conduct of affairs, they cannot be lost. The Protective policy is on the gain in the civilized world, even in Great Britain, where the workmen demand it. The election may check it here, but only for a time.

The Democratic party in the ascendant will have a path beset by perils, says The American Economist. Let it push its "ways" toward the platform promises of Free-trade, and it will find great industrial enterprises owned and managed by men of both parties in partnership, who will not be willing to be political tools.

The world South—agricultural, domineering, lawless, possessed by the blindfolds of the old slavery of which it is the lingering remnant—will demand Free-trade. The men of practical business and industry South and North will say, "Give it."

Let the party inaugurate its platform policy, and the revolutions and disasters, the lack of employ and lowering of wages which would follow will sweep it out of power by a whirlwind.

Let it hesitate and tinker and palter over Tariffs, and it will derange business, check industry by its uncertainty, and show again its incompetence to frame a schedule of customs duties consistent with any policy or fit for any practical purpose—an incompetence shown in the Morrison and Wood and Mills jumbles of incongruities called Tariff bills, which did not even gain the united support of the Democrats in Congress in those days.

If the party does not push for Free-trade people will say: "You are brave and fair in promise, but cowardly and deceptive in performance. Away with you!" All looks fail now, but storms will rage and fierce blasts sweep in every quarter when the Free-trade Democracy begins to "take its own medicine."

To-day Protection is defeated. The election of Harrison and Reed represents of its policy, with the Republicans failing to sustain it, would have been a signal and beneficent triumph—a help to civilization and to the culture and comfort of the people.

Our hope and expectation is that Protectionists, while willing to give the incoming administration fair trial, will watch and work, steadfast to their principles and positive in their attitude against Free-trade or Tariff for revenue only.

The time to begin "the campaign of education" is now, just after the election. The defeated army, conscious of its power and of the strength of its good cause, keeps sound in heart and heroic in mood, and rallies and drills for its coming victory.

AMERICA has been content to send one-half the entire gold production of California (one-half of twelve hundred millions of gold) in the past twenty-five years to England to pay for English tin plate! Think of it! a small area of England supplying 60,000,000 of live Americans with tin plate, when iron, coal, machinery, skill, all exist in America, and when before many years past, Great Britain has ninety-seven tin-plate makers in 172 years past, America has one-fourth as many in one and one-half years, and one of the several has a capacity of one-sixth the entire American yearly demands.

As a New York Democratic journal correctly points out, the popular uprising to which the Mugwumps attribute Mr. CLEVELAND's victory was largely a creation of an over-wrought imagination. As a matter of fact, in the two most important hitherto pivotal states of Indiana and New York, the total vote cast fell far below the vote of 1888, notwithstanding the large increase in population in the meantime. The New York's vote in 1888 was 1,289,333; in 1892, 1,260,333. Indiana's vote was 524,374 in 1888; 518,355 in 1892.

It is plain that, so far from being a popular uprising in these two states, there was a reserve vote large enough to have given itself to President HARRISON. As the Democratic newspaper in question truly remarks, there is "nothing in the election figures to induce the Democracy to believe that it is in a position to gamble."

A notable result is the tracing of a great ocean vortex to the West of the Azores. There exists in this oceanic vortex a region of calm, where the waters do not follow any regular direction, and when the floats enter this region they remain there often for months or years.

Let the party inaugurate its platform policy, and the revolutions and disasters, the lack of employ and lowering of wages which would follow will sweep it out of power by a whirlwind.

Let it hesitate and tinker and palter over Tariffs, and it will derange business,

TWO CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

MAN was found murdered in the village of Norton, East Tennessee, and the authorities arrested a stranger as a suspect. Of course Alfreds had no business in the community, and Alfreds was part of the party of the two or three of us; but a b.s. aside from serious injury was not wanting. Here is the case briefly set forth. Alfreds and a man named Jenkins were seen together one evening walking along the road near the schoolhouse. Jenkins was found with his head crushed in, lying in a patch of briars. At the preliminary trial before a justice of the peace Alfreds declared that he and Jenkins had parted company near the briar patch where the boy had been found, and that Jenkins' decision was not admitted as evidence Alfreds was handed over to the grand jury and was, as everyone expected, indicted for murder and imprisoned to await the action of the circuit court.

The jailer in an obscure village is often a leader in society, and the jailer's daughter is naturally a person of much moment. Old Lisa Springer had, during many years, been jailor in Newgate, and her daughter had had a number of offers of marriage. She was exceedingly bright of countenance and it was the mysterious bosom of the neighborhood that she could parse anything, and she might have been popular were it not due to many people who were glib in repeating this bit of commendable brag. Ruth, from the first moment of Alfreds' imprisonment, showed a sympathetic interest in him. He had dry eyes, thinning chestnut hair, and was very fat. In the afternoon, when the jail corridor was lighted by the sun, she often placed her rocking chair near the door of Alfreds' cell, and sitting there conversed and talked to him.

"Would you like me to come?" you could get the keeper to say, one day.

He pretended to pout.

"But if I stay here to talk to you I shall be in trouble."

"Yes, but a woman would rather talk to a man, even if he is to be hanged for it."

"What an odd little creature you are, Miss Ruth."

"I don't think I odd, do you? I was not the kind of you I am in honor, but I was something besides odd. Anybody can be odd."

"But anybody can't have your sort of oddity."

"Then I've got the oddest sort of oddity. I don't know whether to like it or not."

"Do you know that you are the only man I ever met that didn't try to fester me?"

He passed out and a merry voice was heard. The prisoner's blood leaped. Ruth had returned. All smiles and air of gayety, she entered the corridor and said not a word to the sheriff and the jailer with her.

"Mr. Alfreds," she cried, "I have brought you a Christmas present. Here is your pardon."

"Open the door," said the sheriff. Before Alfreds could respond the iron bars were shadowed over.

"Come on in, I'm sitting down," said the girl and she led him out.

He sat in a rocking-chair. A long time passed before he said anything.

"And have they discovered my innocence?" he asked.

"Oh, you must, must, must you, Mr. Garrison? Why don't you tell me something about yourself?" she asked, after a moment's pause.

"I have—I have told you that you are innocent."

"Oh, that isn't anything. Anybody can be innocent. Where do your people live?"

"We haven't any people."

"Well, where do you come from?"

"I have come from a place where there was no happiness to a place where nothing but misery and disgrace can be expected."

"You make me sad when you talk that way, Mr. Alfreds."

"And would you expect me to inspire gaiety, Miss Ruth?"

"No, I don't think I ought to expect that. But you are not without friends, Mr. Alfreds. And some ladies in this town are interested in you."

"Women are ever interested in a man who is about to be hanged," he replied.

"Oh, don't talk about being hanged. I don't see that they can hang you, you are so nice. He is a good fellow, I don't mind him. If you were some ugly fellow—not so bad for nothing, it would be different. You follow my advice: When you are taken into court look just as pleasant as you can."

"Unfortunately, Miss Ruth, the jury will not accept you as a witness."

"Well, don't you fear. I think it will come out all right."

But did it come out all right? The court met three days later, and after a very short trial Alfreds was sentenced to death. It was thought he would be hanged in a week, but he was not. He was moved to another jail six days later, and after a long trial he was condemned to die. He was to be hanged at Christmas.

The Christmas gift:
Take back the slippers which you send;
But I can't buy a house and lot
To send you in return.

Send them to some other "friend." With Christmas greeting sweet;

He may be better off than I.

If I had winter, like I had once,

I'd tell you what I'd do;

I'd take the slippers, and I'd send

A fine gold watch to you.

And when you looked at it

You'd think the seasons—

Tas' cost me half a dozen "slugs."

The slippers ninety cents.

Yes, dear, the Christmas time has come,

To give your friends a gift;

But now I am too poor to give,

I couldn't make a "HIT."

I don't care for a cigar;

Or get a candy frog;

I haven't got enough to buy

A mazze for a dog.

HARRY FETTERS, the fellow who was charged with throwing a boulder through a C. & O. car window recently near Concord, has been discharged from custody, the evidence against him being too flimsy to hold.

WILLIAM JONES, who died at Hardwick's creek the 11th inst., was about 60 years of age and weighed 60 pounds. His wife is 52 years of age and weighs about 350 pounds, or nearly six times as much as her husband. He erected a residence, and after supposing it finished, had to enlarge the doors before he could enter.

CHICAGO policemen are said to have frightened little eight-year-old Eddie Parker to death. The lad was arrested for having in his possession a stolen shirt, and when brought to the station-house he was, it is claimed, threatened with the gallows and other terror by the officers until he lost control of himself. The policemen were unable to quiet him and sent for his mother, who took him home. He became delirious and had a paroxysm after paroxysm until he finally died.

SILVER may be cheap—say $3 cents an ounce—but its production is much cheaper. In the three most prominent mines at Creede silver has been produced at 25 cents an ounce, and the profits from these mines last year were $1,000,000 on a $300,000 investment. Two Creede mines can produce $9,000,000 ounces per annum. A mine at Aspen has been turning out 2,500,000 ounces per annum at a cost, it is said, of less than 14 cents per ounce.

As a result of litigation brought on by Freiberg & Warkum, Cincinnati distillers, 950 barrels of whisky were sold at auction in front of the Court at Louisville. The case is an interesting one, and has been in the Louisville Chancery Court since March 12th. On the day before that date Mr. Bowditch, of the whisky firm of Bohm & Co., Denver, Col., committed suicide. They were heavily in debt to Freiberg & Warkum, who at once attached 1,915 barrels of whisky belonging to the Denver firm, but in the hands of Moore & Selliger of Louisville. Recently 650 barrels of whisky were ordered sold and they brought an average of 56 5-9 cents per gallon. About 850 barrels of this were in bond and sold by the gallon. There are left 675 barrels to be disposed of, but it will not be sold at present. Freiberg & Warkum want to recover $17,000.

Against Sunday Closing.

The people of Chicago who resist the efforts of the keepers of saloons and of questionable resorts to have the World's Fair closed on Sundays, so as to enable them to reap a harvest out of the thousands of strangers and idlers who will throng the city during the Exposition, have acted wisely in invoking the powers of the courts to compel Sunday opening. They have applied for the injunction to restrain the Directors of the Fair from closing its gates on Sunday. Their ground is that Jackson Park is public property, from which the people cannot be legally excluded on any day in the year.

BACK TO LIFE.

A Remarkable Surgical Operation in New York.

The Heart of Little Jimmy McCaughy Cesssed to Beat.

His Eyes Became Glassy and the Extremities Cold—He is Saved By the Surgeon's Skill—A New Form in Removing the Vermiform Appendix.

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—The medical profession is much stirred, so far as it is yet familiar with the facts in the case, by the details of a remarkable surgical operation performed by Dr. Albert Shantz of the city.

The fact accomplished is no less than the bringing back to life of a person practically dead, as the term is usually understood. Among the many wonder cases recorded in medical history, probably not one has been matched by features as unique as that of which Jimmy McCaughy, aged 12, is to-day the living example.

The physician was called to the case in the night, and found the patient had all the symptoms of "appendicitis," or, as it is vulgarly called, inflammation of the blind gut. Though the seat of trouble was not apparent, the diagnosis made plain the fact that the sufferer was doomed, as far as common knowledge by physicians in similar cases. On the advice of the physician the members were advised of the gravity of the case, and when next morning a very sizeable lump was observable over the seat of the inflammation, the diagnosis was fully justified, and the trouble was exactly stated as being an attack of the verminiform appendix.

An operation was at once recommended but was delayed until the arrival of the surgeon, who had been informed in anticipation of the near approach of death. The next afternoon the surgeon was finally called and directed to proceed. When he arrived it was discovered that the abdomen had broken, thus covering the intestines with a large amount of blood. At this crisis it was clear to the scientific mind that the boy was dying. The doctor told the family that dissolution would take place within an hour, and that though it was possible that an operation might postpone the end, it would require many times again to do so.

Permission to proceed was given, being understood that in any event of failure to secure relief the end would not be hastened more than fifteen minutes. The boy was carefully placed on a table, and while under the influence of a slight anaesthetic an opening about eight inches long was made in the walls of the abdomen. From the incision there was at once a plenteous flow of pus. No sooner had this taken place than the heart stopped, and the heart stopped, the jaw dropped and every evidence of the most complete collapse betokened the presence of death.

The glassy eyes upturned, the coldness of the extremities, and the death departing with him the body was soon left, no doubt in the mind of those present that the experiment had resulted fatally.

At this point the surgeon's skill was displayed. With one hand he tore open the wound, and the other he emptied the contents of a pitcher of hot water into the abdominal cavity. For a brief interval the fluttering renewal of action was apparent only to the practised medical eye, but soon the pulsations grew stronger, and ere long the heart gained by the administration of hypodermic injections. With a new lease of life, there was a chance for the surgeon to look for the seat of the absorption.

The foreign substance was found and removed by a most delicate operation, and Thursday the patient is convalescent. Operations for the removal of the "verminiform appendix" are by no means uncommon, but the surgeon's skill in this case, and the experience of advanced practitioners in the cases with physical conditions as extreme as those in the one cited. Some idea of the interest manifested in the case may be gained from the statement that for several days there have been demands to retain the details without success. From the points here given it is claimed that medical men now believe it to have been determined that no case of appendicitis need be necessarily regarded as fatal.

The liabilities are about $30,000, and the assets, including valuable contracts on hand, will cover these.
